1.1 PURPOSE OF POLICY

Meningitis is a disease caused by the inflammation of the protective membranes covering the brain and spinal cord. The inflammation is usually caused by an infection of the fluid surrounding the brain and spinal cord. Meningitis is also referred to as spinal meningitis. Meningitis may develop in response to a number of causes, usually bacteria or viruses, but meningitis can also be caused by physical injury, cancer or certain drugs.

The severity of illness and the treatment for meningitis differ depending on the cause. Bacterial meningitis is usually more severe than viral, fungal, or parasitic meningitis. Although it can be very serious or even fatal, bacterial meningitis can be treated with antibiotics that can prevent severe illness and reduce the spread of infection from person to person.

Meningococcal vaccines protect against most types of meningococcal disease, but they do not prevent all cases. Nevertheless, among other groups, the Centers for Disease Control (“CDC”) recommend vaccinating pre-teens/adolescents from 11 through 18 year old. The CDC also recommends that adults who are college freshmen living in a dormitory also receive the vaccination (for a more detailed explanation, visit the CDC website at: http://www.cdc.gov/meningitis/index.html). With Respect to college students, the CDC has stated:

College freshmen, especially those who live in dormitories, are at a slightly increased risk for bacterial meningitis caused by Neisseria meningitidis bacteria (meningococcal disease) compared with other persons of the same age. As of 2009, a total of 34 states have adopted legislation requiring colleges to provide information on risks of meningococcal disease to incoming students and/or students residing on campus, and 15 states have mandated vaccination for certain students, unless a vaccination waiver is provided. (https://www.cdc.gov/mmwr/preview/mmwrhtml/rr4907a2.htm)

South Carolina law provides as follows:
§ 59-101-290.

(A) A public institution of higher learning shall notify incoming students, or the parent or guardian of an incoming student under the age of eighteen, of the risk of contracting meningococcal disease and Hepatitis B if living in on-campus student housing.

(B) A public institution of higher learning shall include vaccination against meningococcal disease and Hepatitis B as recommended immunization in health and medical information provided to students or prospective students and parents or guardians.

(C) A private institution of higher learning may elect to be governed by this section and at any time may, in its sole discretion, remove itself from such governance.

Because of the potential severity of this disease, the methods by which it may be communicated to others, and the fact that many if not most of the College student population live in a community setting and are otherwise in close proximity while in class or participating in other activities on or around campus, the College believes it is necessary to affirmatively act on this matter beyond the provision of only providing information to students and their families.
